

Cafco Grows Stronger

Cafco International has recently added a further forty years of passive fire protection experience and expertise to its already well-established worldwide presence.

John Swindlehurst, previously Managing Director/President of Carboline/Nullifre in the USA, has joined the Alfreton based passive fire protection (PFP) systems manufacturer as Director of Sales Development for Intumescent Products. He brings with him forty years of technical, commercial and market acumen in the fields of PFP intumescent systems and corrosion protection.

Before moving to the USA John, who has a successful track record in developing sales in conjunction with a wide variety of clients, was Export Director of UK based Nullifire Ltd. As such, he was responsible for evolving penetration strategies into developing overseas markets. Recent involvement with Cafco products in the USA has provided him with an excellent insight into the company's traditional range of PFP materials, as well as intumescent.
